Stock Prices Fail to Rise When Inauguration of Taft Is Announced.

WALL STREET DEADLY DULL

ANOTHER SLIDE DOWNWARD IN THE CLOSING HOUR.

New York, March 4.- The inauguration of the new president was received with I passive satisfaction in the financial dis- 3. trict so far as operations in the stock market gave any surface indications. The 4. cheers of the brokers on the floor upon the announcement of the swearing in of Mr. Taft were the most tangible expression of the prevailing view. The point in the character of the president which is most prized in financial circles is that stated by himself in appreciative estimate of his predecessor, published in a periodical in the words.

"His intense desire to reach practical results for good has made him, at times, impatient of the restraint of legal methods, while I have been trained as a lawyer and a judge, and am as strongly imbued with the necessity for legal methods. ods as eleven years on the bench are likely to make one."

Wall street's appraisement of all the policies and intentions outlined in the inaugural address is tempered by the consideration of individual temperament which the president has thus himself recognized. The inaugural address contained nothing to surprise stock operators. Aside from the fact of the clear outline of intentions which the campaign discussion and occasional published discussion and occasional published statements since had given, the circulation in advance of the document itself had given opportunity, according to professed claims in the commission houses, to study the text of the document beforehand. The professional element in the speculation, therefore, would have had opportunity to act on their estimate of the effects of the address several days ago. During that time professional days ago. During that time professional efforts to discount the inauguration consisted in the occasional buying of a few stocks. As it so happened that subsequent considerations induced the closing out of much of this purchase, the pro-'essional traders found little left for them o do as an expression of opinion over

The millers again made an advance in their product yesterday of 10c per 100 pounds. This advance now applies to all grades of flour, and from the present outlook the price will remain high for some time to come. During the last seven weeks all grades of flour have advanced 60c per 100 pounds. The millers say that the advance is caused by a shortage of Litah celery. 2 bunches for the advance is caused by a shortage of that and what is available is demanding higher prices than for eighteen years.
